Women Hunting Alaska

Women Hunting Alaska

This compilation of 17 of Alaska's outstanding women hunters profiles the unique backgrounds that led them to their passion for hunting, and includes some of their most memorable hunting adventures in the Last Frontier. Christine Cunningham's true stories of Alaska's women hunters take you along on a hunt with each woman as you experience their diverse philosophies on hunting. The women vary from 20-year-old Molly Copple with limited hunting experience-but unlimited desire, to 84-year-old Ethel Leedy who has taken all 29 species of North American big game. Christine Cunningham was born in Sitka, Alaska, and is a freelance writer who now lives on Alaska's Kenai Peninsula. She has been published in Alaska Magazine, Fish Alaska, The Redoubt Reporter, Wildfowl, and others. Her experiences as a hunter have inspired her to give something back to the American hunting tradition. She shares her love of hunting and fishing through mentoring youth hunts; by developing unique hunting opportunities for both youth and women hunters; and by writing about fishing, shooting, and bird hunting with her three chocolate Labradors and two English setters.
