Spirit: A Different Way of Looking at Things... Stephen William McClure

Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit says Yahweh of Hosts. Everything is Spirit, says His Son. For the Father stated that His Son is the One Who baptizes us in Spirit and with Fire.

This is the author's fifth book in the series entitled "A different way of looking at things...". It provides the reader with a focused application of the main principles that were presented with regard to the actions of the Spirit in the believer's life.

No Sword but empty hands. However, these hands are not so 'empty'...

This is a story of possibilities, applicable throughout the ages, as imagined told by an elder prophet to the sons of the prophets:

For this tale is not to boast, for indeed when compared to most, it can truly be said that I have led a quiet life. But it is to say and to provide examples of the way God works and of His leading. For this is an account in which a man who did not know God, became His servant and ended up as His friend.

Now some would infer that to be a believer all one need do is to utter one little prayer and then everything is yours. Nothing else is required. You now belong to the Lord and are on your way to the Kingdom for a very happy eternity.

Well, what if that is not exactly correct. Oh, please do not take me wrongly, for there is a great deal that is obtained through that one single prayer. That indeed is true.

But perhaps you don't obtain as much as you might think you are receiving through that single solitary action.

Perhaps there is more to it than first meets the eye.

For remember, the adversary, that enemy of mankind, has had many thousands of years of preparation in his art of deception and I assure you, he has not been idle. [Ver 3-19, April 2015]
